VET teacher quality and qualifications: The training provider perspective

Andrew Shea

Challenges and Opportunities in VET provision and VET practice

- Ever-changing landscape resulting in limited private provider long term investment
- Student completion data focus
- Update on the TAE Training and Education Training Package
 - To be deemed as not equivalent to the current qualification and skill set.

ACPET's nearly 1,300 members are, of course, its core and real strength and it was pleasing to see so many members making a valuable contribution during the year, including through the state and territory forums, state and territory committees and national conference and through our revitalised Higher Education, VET and International committees. Having the 'on the ground' advice of members has been vital in influencing the shape of key government policies. Rod Camm, ACPET CEO

New Team Leaders Development Project

ACPET gained funding through the VET Development Centre (VDC), for staff of ACPET members to participate in a workforce development initiative that will assist in the development of team leader skills, enabling them to be more successful in their role.

This project offered participants a range of expert support services, including:

- workshops on leadership and team building
- 1:1 coaching support at the participant's workplace, and
- membership in a monthly Community of Practice with fellow participants.

VDC 2016 Grants opportunities

The VET Development Centre once again has a range of Grant programs to support the on-going development of the professional teaching and specialist staff workforce.

Training organisations that have a VET funding contract to deliver government-subsidised training under the Victorian Training Guarantee are eligible for project funding.
